RATIFICATION BY GERMANY NOT CERTAIN

Reichstag Will Vote on Dawes Plan Late Tonight

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Paris, Aug. 28.—The outlook for ratification by Germany of the Dawes plan agreement concluded at the recent international conference at London, became worse today, according to latest news from Berlin. The Reichstag probably will vote on the plan late tonight, it was learned by officials here.

COMMUNISTS INTERRUPT

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Berlin, Aug. 28.—Final balloting in the Reichstag on bills necessary to German's part in the Dawes reparation program has been postponed until tomorrow because of the prolonged interruptions from the communists. The disturbances yesterday culminated in general fighting and the Reichstag president was compelled to call in a police squad and have three of the communists removed.

Unless the nationalists decide to give the legislative program negative support by permitting defections there apparently is scant hope of the government obtaining the two thirds majority required for final passage.

Chancellor Marx has obtained from President Ebert, a decree providing for the dissolution of the Reichstag, which he intends to use if the necessary two thirds vote is not forthcoming.

Edge of Storm Disturbs Labrador Coast Today.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

On Board U. S. S. Richmond at Ice Tickle, Labrador, Aug. 28.—A fringe of the violent storm which has been traveling northward over the Atlantic for several days struck Labrador coast shortly after the arrival of the Richmond here yesterday.

There were heavy winds accompanied by rain, but the local forecast prepared by an army aerologist indicates clearing weather later in the week, possibly in time to allow the aviators to carry out their desire to leave Iqaluit tomorrow morning.

During their stay at Iqaluit the aviators have taken the opportunity to install new engines and put their machines in the best of condition for the 572 mile trip.

Vandals Demolish Lighting System at Brown Field

The Milwaukee Badgers, one of the fastest independent football organizations in the state of Wisconsin and the Omaha Olympics, of equal importance in Nebraska, gridiron circles, have both written for games this season with the Dixon American Legion team. Booking Agent Edward Jones has received any number of applications for dates, but these are being held in abeyance for a few days while the schedule is being arranged.

The flood lighting system which was installed at Brown's Field, Monday afternoon to permit the team to practice after dark, was almost completely demolished by boys residing in the vicinity of the park yesterday. The big shades were torn loose and thrown into the street, the incandescent bulbs were stolen and after committing all of this depredation, the miscreants short circuited the power line. Sheriff Risley who is coaching the team this season is conducting an investigation and expects to be able to learn the identity of the offenders today and they will then be prosecuted.

TAP ARTESIAN WELL IN WORK ON DIXON DAM

Will Light Works and Put on Night Shift Soon.

An artesian well which is flowing a six inch stream was tapped in the deep excavation at the site for the new hydro-electric plant at the foot of Ottawa avenue yesterday afternoon. The well has flowed continuously since being uncovered and is in 15 feet of solid rock. The water is clear and very cold.

President Harry Price of the construction company which is doing the excavating work, announced this morning that a night force would be started in a few days. Electricians are wiring the workings with powerful flood lights which will furnish illumination that the work may progress during the night as well as the day.

The high stage of water has hindered the progress of the excavations and with clear, warm weather it is hoped that the stage of the river will have receded sufficiently early next week to permit it day and night forces of workmen on the improvement. It was said.

"MARGERY" PUTS ON DEMONSTRATION TO PROVE HER POWER

No Decision in Scientific American Investigation.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Boston, Aug. 28.—The latest series of tests to determine whether Mrs. Lerol G. Crandon, wife of a prominent surgeon of this city, who has been known as "Margery" to the world of psychic students, could induce phenomena that would warrant award to her of the Scientific American's prizes for such genuine feats, ended last night with results said to be both positive and negative.

In a big black box fashioned out of inch thick oak in the manner of an old time pillory, the medium was said to have failed to invoke proof. In another box somewhat similar, but with more freedom, results were positive, bells being rung and messages transmitted, it was said.

POSTAL INSPECTORS SEARCHING FOR THE WIFE OF BILL FAHY

Think She May Know Something About $2,000,000 Loot.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Postal inspectors today sought Mrs. William P. Fahy, who they say has disappeared since the arrest of her husband, known as an "ace" of inspectors here, on charges of alleged complicity in the $2,000,000 Rundout, Illinois mail robbery. She is wanted for questioning in connection with the search being made for the loot which they believe is secreted here.

A woman thought to have been Mrs. Fahy visited their home yesterday and left with a bundle of papers with a man, who, inspectors say, is a government employee. Fahy's alleged affairs with women, particularly the wife of a man now in jail under indictment for actual participation in the robbery are under scrutiny.

MURPHY'S WIFE ACTS

Meanwhile action has been started by Mrs. Florence Murphy, wife of "Big Tim" Murphy who is in Leavenworth serving a sentence for conspiracy in the $300,000 Dearborn Station mail robbery which Fahy investigated. She charges Fahy with obstructing her husband's efforts to obtain a parole to which he is eligible.

Members of the committee failed to agree that the new box would develop a conclusive test, and Mrs. Crandon said today that a statement was signed by all participating in the recent sitting that "there is no assurance that ectoplasm can be made to work through oak an inch thick."

Today's Market Report

Grains Strong on the Market Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Bullish foreign news gave the wheat market on this side a firm undertone and values took on an upward slant during the early dealings. Several commission houses became active buyers at the start and the market responded well. Initial figures which ranged from $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$ higher with Sept. 1.21%@1.22 and Dec. 1.26%@1.27 were followed by additional gains all around.

Corn followed wheat upgrade, being mainly influenced by the continued run of unfavorable reports regarding the growth. After starting 1 to 3% up with Dec. 1.13%@1, the market sagged a trifle and then advanced again.

Oats opened $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$ higher, Dec. 52% to $\frac{1}{4}$ and later scored slight further gains.

Provisions reflected strength in the grain and hog markets.

Strength in corn did much to retain the higher average in the wheat market during late trading. The close was strong at net advance of 1% to 2¢ Sept. 1.22%@3 and Dec. 1.27%@1.28.

Persistent selling later affected corn and brought about a slight reaction. The close was firm with values up 1% to 2%; Dec. 1.13%@1.

CAVERLY SCORES STATE'S ATTORNEY FOR HIS ATTACK

Indian Squaw Less Shackled Than Our Modern Women Are

BY GEORGE BRITT,
NEA SERVICE WRITER.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—The modern woman, progressing toward freedom and dominance, may yet become a first-class squaw.

But a squaw among the Iroquois Indians was a more powerful personage than most of the emancipated women of today. The picture of the Indian woman bearing her husband's burdens and tilling the corn fields while he smoked in the shade may be put away on the shelf along with yesterday's kerosene lamps. Squaw is a word of dignified rank.

Such are the thoughts suggested by Dr. Fay Cooper Cole, associate professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago, after studies of matriarchal or maternal government among the Menangkabau of Sumatra and the Iroquois of North America. The squaw very often was the power behind the wigwam, according to Dr. Cole.

Cities Other Cases

Mr. Crowe cited another case of a Chicago boy sentenced to death at 19, and then read excerpts from a speech once delivered by Clarence Darrow before the prisoners of the Cook county jail.

The quotations set forth the view of the senior defense counsel that "there is little moral difference between those in here and those outside."

Darrow Objects

"Under a matriarchal system the husbands have no property right, no rights in their children and often are political pawns of the wives," he says. "The system usually accompanies a very high type of advancement in culture. The Menangkabau are by no means a primitive people. The Iroquois in America were among the least primitive Indians."

The whole political system was built upon the family, and woman was the controlling element in the family. Usually it was the older or head woman.

Caverly Warns Crowe

Judge Caverly told the attorneys he would pay no attention to extraneous matter in reaching his decision and suggested that Mr. Crowe was not using his time profitably.

"What Mr. Darrow has said or done has no bearing on the penalty that is to be given to these young men, the only subject before this court," he said. The prosecutor tossed the booklet aside and turned to a vitriolic attack upon the "anarchistic philosophy of Clarence Darrow."

Darrows Dangerous Philosophy

"The real defense here is Clarence Darrow's dangerous philosophy of life," he shouted. "It would probably have been less dangerous to this community if this crime had not been disclosed."

Could Recall Chief.

Not only did the head woman of the tribe have a check on the chief's activities by controlling his election, but she also exercised the power of veto and recall. In addition to the elected leaders, there were certain "Pine Three Chiefs," who became such by virtue of their wisdom. Several such high honors went to women. Iroquois tribal law exacted a higher price for the injuring of a woman than a man.

"Society can endure even though criminals escape. But if your honor puts the seal of approval of this great court upon this doctrine, we contend that a greater damage shall have been done to these young men than to the community if this crime had not been disclosed."

Asks for Death

Mr. Crowe concluded his arguments with a short whispered plea for the death penalty.

JUDGE BLASTS CROWE

Chicago, Aug. 28.—(By the Associated Press)—"The closing remarks of the state's attorney in this case were a cowardly and dastardly attack on the integrity of this court and will be stricken from the records," said Judge Caverly, just before taking up the case in which he is to decide the punishment of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., for the kidnapping and murder of Robert Frank.

Class of '24 Held Picnic at Hazelwood

About fifteen members and teachers attended the picnic of the class of '24 of the North Side High school last Friday. The affair took place at Hazelwood, the beautiful and historic country home of Attorney E. H. Brewster, whose son, Hughes, is a member of the class. At the business meeting it was decided that as nearly as possible the class should have a reunion every year, thus the happy occasion of last Friday was only the first of a series of good times. Another interesting matter of business acted favorably upon was the suggestion to start a circular letter among the members of the class. When lunch time came a large quantity of sweet corn was one of the dishes. Another was a large cake on the frosting of which was the words "Dixon High School." As the affair took place on the anniversary of the birthday of Mrs. Flatman it took on the air of a birthday party when she was called upon to cut the cake. A "sing" ended the program and finished an evening enjoyed by everyone. The visitors present were Superintendent and Mrs. I. B. Potter and daughter, Miss Cora Miller, North Side mathematics teacher, and Mrs. Bessie Flatman, chemistry teacher.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

MENACE TO HEALTH
At all times, but particularly during the summer, the garbage can should be kept closely covered or it is a menace to health.

LAVING LINOLEUM
Before being tacked to the floor linoleum should lie loose for at least a month so it can stretch. Then when it is tacked there will be no ridges which always cause it to wear out quickly.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

Miss Pyfer and Fred Weber Wed

Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the parsonage to the Immanuel Lutheran church, the pastor, Rev. A. G. Suechting, performed the impressive service uniting in marriage Miss Grace Marie Pyfer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pyfer, 815 Peoria avenue, and Frederick Weber of Sterling.

The couple were attended by Miss Marion Pyfer, sister of the bride, and her maid of honor; and by Miss Mabel Burdick of Rock Falls, as bridesmaid; and the bridegroom was attended by Martin and Harry Weber of Freeport.

The bride was charming in a beautiful costume, her grey gown of cotton crepe being worn with grey slippers and hose. She wore a handsome corsage bouquet of bride's roses.

Miss Pyfer, the maid of honor, was beautifully gowned in brown and Miss Mabel Burdick, the bridesmaid, was gowned in a lovely dress of tan color. Both wore handsome corsage bouquets of pink roses.

LEE ON COOLIDGE'S RECORD.

W. G. Lee, Grand President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, is entitled to the thanks of all boosters for good government for the stand he has taken in his political relations with his organization members. "I have never deceived myself," says he, "into the belief that the membership, through my influence, could be delivered to any political party at will." Mr. Lee will confine himself to setting before his members the labor record of all candidates for public office, with an explanation of their platforms, and then permit intelligent conclusions to be drawn. Mr. Lee's statement, given out following the announcement from Mr. Gompers and his executive committee that organized labor would be urged to support the radical ticket, is as follows:

"I purpose to place before the membership the records of the three candidates, the records of their parties and the platforms on which they are running, so that members of the brotherhood will have all the essential facts necessary to make a choice of the candidates."

"No word of mine will be in any way persuasive as to choice. The brotherhood is composed of men of fine intelligence. I would not presume—I would be ashamed to indicate a voting policy—for that would indicate that I have less faith in their intelligence than I have."

"Labor leaders who attempt to make Congressmen and others believe they carry the vote of the membership in their vest pockets are only kidding themselves, and I have been surprised at the number of public servants and others who seem to believe that labor's vote can be traded to about the same extent as any article of merchandise. The membership of the brotherhood—approximately 180,000 at this time—is sufficiently intelligent to determine how and when to vote, and I have never deceived myself into the belief that such membership, through my influence, could be delivered to any political party at will. The extent to which this organization goes in connection with such matters is to place before the membership, in circular form, the labor record of public servants, candidates for office."

Mr. Lee goes further, and says that the record of President Coolidge, both while Governor of Massachusetts and since he has been in the White House, has been entirely satisfactory to the Brotherhood. The efforts of radical agitators to create dissension between the Republican administration and labor interests are meeting a response that is far from favorable. Labor leaders who do not think it their chief duty to stir up unrest among their followers, are candid enough to place credit where credit is due. Thereby they add materially to the respect in which their organization is publicly held."

WHEN YOU BEGIN TO GET OLD.

At the age of 109, Mrs. Nora Bradley Kane died in Newton, Conn. She claimed she never had a doctor until a week before her death, yet had always enjoyed fine health.

Her formula was: "Work hard and leave all the rest to God."

A fine formula for a person gifted with excellent health. She never had a physician, for the simple reason that she never needed one. Incidentally she escaped an unfortunate feature of some medicine—that it often cures one organ of the body by wrecking another.

Doctors don't prescribe as much pills and tonic as they used to. These have their place in certain definite ailments, but the medical profession is recognizing Proper Living and Sanitation as the best medicines.

Formulas for living to very old age are constantly coming to light in the news. The public is always eager for them. But, unfortunately, these formulas rarely are of much value—because what is one person's meat is another's poison.

Aged people frequently claim that temperate living is responsible for their advanced years.

Yet the other day a healthy veteran of 74 appeared before Magistrate Gresser in New York on a charge of being intoxicated. He said that he had been drinking whisky for 60 years, and the only difference he could notice was that liquor is "not what it used to be."

People who survive to very old age usually come from long-lived stock. In one family, members who grow to maturity have a tendency to live to about 70, while in another family most of them die around 60.

Making allowances for individual cases that deviate from the rule, every family has—by the law of averages—it danger year, when death seems to strike down the greatest number. If you have a record of your family tree, you can check up and learn your danger year—when to be most careful.

The age of death has a close connection with heredity.

TRANSIT.

Changed ways of living—progress—work strange revolutions in industry. Dr. Luis Levine writes a book, "The Garment Workers," reviewing the history of garment making. He dwells on the year 1860, when the steel industry was greatly stimulated by the popularity of the hoop skirt.

All that is gone. So, also, is the big steel business based on corset stays. Today the auto industry is one of the leading consumers of steel. In a half-century or less, little steel may be used for motor cars, demand shifted to airplanes.

Progress in change.

DRUDGE.

Rural woman still is a drudge, mourns a scientist of Smithsonian Institution. She will continue so, to considerable extent, until the country is placed on an electrical basis.

Electricity is destined to be the Great Emancipator of human slavery. Coal will be burned at the mines, generating power to be sent over high-tension wires. Or by radio. Possibly some farm boy, impressed by his mother's drudgery, will find the radio way that will be cheap and universal.

NO. 22—A REMARKABLE SIDE-SHOW

The Twins were selling tickets.

The circus was to begin at 1 o'clock, and long before that time the place was crowded.

Weeny said to Toby, the dog, and Prince, the pony, that if business kept up they would have enough money to take two more vacations.

The Twins were selling tickets and all the wood folk and meadow folk for miles around crowded to get in.

"I'm not sure about this circus business," said Daddy Crack-nuts, as he passed 10 cents for two tickets to Nick, for himself and his wife. "Are you sure you have no foxes or tigers or anything that might take a notion to make a meal of us?"

"Honesty we haven't, Daddy," said Nick. "There's nobody in our circus but a nice kind elephant and a dog and a pony."

"Then I'll go and tell the other people what you said," remarked Daddy. "Have you got any sideshows?"

"Yes, we've got a fine sideshow," said Nick. "That's two cents extra. You go into that before the circus begins."

Daddy went out, but soon he came back. "They are all coming," he cried. "All the Bunnies and Coons and Cottontails and Woodchucks and everybody. And they are all going to see your side-show, too! Gimme two tickets extra for ma and me. Come on, ma."

"There's the side-show over there," said Nick, pointing to a clump of bushes and a big sign which said, "See the greatest curiosity in the world! A pony's head where his tail ought to be!"

"For the Rodeo's sake!" cried Mrs. Crack-nuts excitedly. "A pony's head where his tail ought to be! Oh, pa,

WHEELER MUST DEFEND CHARGE IN MONT. COURT

Indictment to Change LaFollette Campaign Program.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Revision of the LaFollette-Wheeler campaign plans appeared likely today in view of advice that Senator Wheeler, the vice presidential candidate, might be obliged to curtail prospective speaking engagements during September.

Mr. Wheeler has been notified to appear in the Montana federal courts September 1 for arraignment on an indictment charging him with improperly appearing as counsel before a federal department after his election to the senate. Negotiations have been made for his counsel, headed by Senator Walsh, democrat of Montana, to appear for him, but Mr. Wheeler has reiterated his intention of appearing in court personally when his case comes to trial. Announcement has been made that the trial probably will begin about September 15.

After conferring with Senator LaFollette Mr. Wheeler declared he would go through with his plan to open his campaign in Boston Labor Day and follow this address up with several in other New England cities.

In the event he goes west for trial, tentative engagements made for him in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey for early September may have to be cancelled.

Very few are satisfied with their lot unless it is a lot of luck.

BILL BOARD ADS NOT SO POPULAR IN AMERICA NOW
Anti-Billboard Campaign Receives Support from Big Concerns.

An editor and a merchant were discussing the virtue of bill board advertising. The merchant contended that more people read the bill boards than the newspapers. After a lengthy conversation in which neither man would give in, the merchant came tearing down to the newspaper office, wanting to know why the obituary of his wife's mother was not in the paper, especially after he had seen that the copy was taken to the newspaper office. "Well," said the editor, "I know you wanted that obituary read by the people, so I took it out and nailed it up on your bill board."—Ex.

Billboard advertisers are beginning to see the handwriting on the wall. Billboards have become so numerous and vandalistic, robbing the tourists of the most beautiful scenery along the country road in whatsoever direction he may choose to go, that they have aroused the ill-will of a majority of the people who travel and not alone the finicky and fastidious.

The anti-billboard campaign is receiving much attention since being started by the National Committee for the restriction of outdoor advertising and is having the co-operation of many nationally known firms such as Standard Oil company of New Jersey and of California, Pilsbury Flour Mills company, Goodyear Tire Company, H. J. Heinz company and many others. These have sensed the public pulse and realize that instead of selling goods from such advertising billboards obstructing beautiful scenery which latter takes the tourist on his trip, arouse much indignation to the extent in some instances of boycott. As one objector says, "Advertising done through legitimate channels in newspapers and magazines is done at the expense of the advertiser; advertising done on unsightly billboards is done at the expense of the public."

Florenz Ziegfeld of the Ziegfeld "Follies" has been convinced that newspaper advertising is superior to any other and in consequence has decided to cancel a huge sign maintained in New York City at an annual expense of $50,000 as well as other signs costing $75,000 annually. This sum, says Mr. Ziegfeld, he will put into newspaper advertising in the future.—Little Falls Transcript.

ADVERTISING SHORT CUT TO PROGRESS; REDUCES THE H. C. L.

Advertising Raises Standard of Living and Cuts Cost.

Advertising has become one of the great fields of human activity. We say industry has been built on steel and steam and electricity. It has been built on advertising as well. Civilization as we know it today would have been impossible without the systematic use of publicity as developed in the modern art of advertising. A country without advertising could not possibly know the comforts of life that are commonplaces to the United States.

The subject of advertising is so vital to human progress that it deserves far more thought and attention than are usually bestowed on it. Mr. F. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York, in discussing the effects of advertising in creating standard goods and for service before the Advertising Clubs of the World in London, pointed out its value in developing and stabilizing distribution as well as production. As he says, the cotton grower in the South is benefited by the advertising of shirts and collars throughout the country. And he comes to the conclusion that: "What ever is of genuine use to human beings, whether it be goods or service, can, with truth and dignity, be advertised and sold, and that is just as proper to merchandise forms of service as to sell commodities."

There was a time when banks, insurance companies, churches, felt it was undignified to advertise the service they had to offer. Today they are advertising with wholesome results to the whole community. What a loss it is to the public that great hospitals do not yet see their way clear to set forth their possible services to suffering humanity!

Another point on which Mr. Sisson dwells is not sufficiently appreciated. That is the effect of advertising in reducing the cost of goods. Thousands of people still occasionally remark that the advertising cost is "added" to the price. They ignore the fact that price depends on the quality of goods produced and distributed.

Suppose a merchant must clear $2,500 from selling clothing. If he sells one hundred suits he must make a profit of $25 a suit in order to make his $2,500. But if by advertising he can sell a thousand suits, he need only make $25 a suit. Suppose it has cost him $1000 for advertising. That is only $1 a suit. Then a total profit of $300 a suit will take care of his advertising bill and give him his $2,000 clear profit. The purchaser is the beneficiary of the advertising investment.

This aspect of advertising is proved out in everyday experience. The stores that advertise most extensively sell cheapest. That is because the advertising brings them volume of business which enables them to prosper with a small profit on each article sold.

Advertising constantly operates to raise the standard of living. It is a short-cut to human progress. Its service indispensable to modern society.

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

Your letter, Jack, was exactly what I expected of you. You always get yourself into trouble, and then you ask somebody to get you out of it. Some day, old man, you'll come a cropper. I won't have so very much sympathy for you even then, and I certainly have none now.

I wonder if you realize that if Leslie wishes she can take that boy away from you. It wouldn't surprise me at all if she did this. It would be if little Jack learned to call some other man "Daddy." Stranger things rather poetic retribution, wouldn't it, have happened.

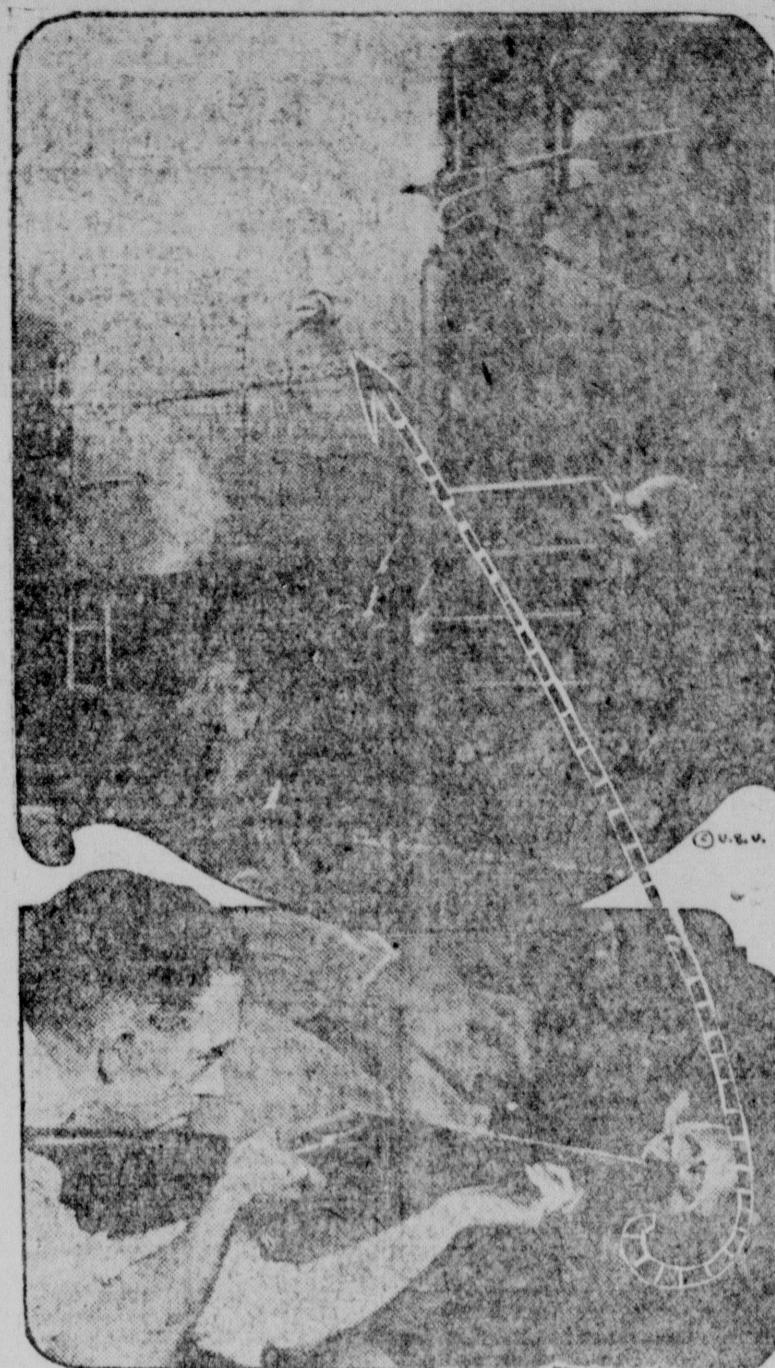

I often wonder why it is that men seem to think they are capable of loving as many times as they find the time, the place and the girl in conjunction, while they are sure that women never love but once. All the great lovers of history have voiced this sentiment. Heine, bless his egotistical heart, having said that women are too delicate and spiritual-minded to feel the great passion more than once. I'd like to have him tell that to a modern flapper wouldn't you?

Of course I don't know Leslie's side of the story, but I think you would better get into the band wagon right away. First thing you know Leslie will tire of your foolishness and tell you so. I don't mind telling you, not even having heard from Leslie on the matter, that I'll put my money on her and wager everything I have in the world that she is right. You say you can't understand her. You mean you can't understand why she has disappointed you in some egotistical thing that you think is due to you from her. If you had a grain of sense you would know that any woman who cared enough for a man to do what Leslie has for you would not stoop to betray him in the slightest degree, even if she found, to her great disappointment, that he had not come up to the ideal which she had of him.

I can't help thinking that little cat of a sister of hers was at the bottom of this trouble. This may be just a hunch, but from what you have said about her, and from what I saw of her at your wedding three years ago, I am sure she would stop at nothing to get what she wants. She seems to me a kind of a second edition of Mrs. Atherton without Mrs. Atherton's common sense and loyalty to her friends.

I met you'll find out that she sent that anonymous letter. You bit, all

Mail Car Made Bandit-Proof

If the bullet-proof armored mail-car, tried out by postal authorities on the New York Central tracks near Brewster, N. Y., becomes popular, mail-train robbers will have to seek less hazardous work.

As the "bandits" stormed the train, an automatic magnesium flash, released from within, flooded the countryside with a light and dazzled the hold-up men.

They kept blazing away, without making even a dent, until a mail clerk, safe from exposure, opened fire with a riot gun controlled through a special universal joint and routed them post haste.

right, old man, and in doing so you hurt grievously the woman you say you love.

I should think women would hate us. We never stop to look at their side of a controversy. We never consult their wishes except when their wishes are coincident with ours. You'll probably say, "How do you know all this when you're not married?" You haven't got sense enough to understand that while I don't know my own sex, and all I have been doing here is to tell you a few truths about yourself and myself and every other man.

By the way, I had a letter from Paula Ferrier, written to me from Chicago. She's an amazing woman. She wrote the letter to urge me to advise you to take the money she wants to settle on little Jack. In some ways I think it would be a good idea for both little Jack and Paula although I am not sure it is the best thing in the world for Paula to still feel she has a claim on the boy. What she ought to do is to forget the incident and fall in love with some other man, if a man is necessary to her peace of mind.

However, you might invest the money in good bonds, and if Paula should ever be in need—you can't ever tell what will happen to these moving picture actresses—you could give it back to her. Otherwise it would be a nice nest egg to start the boy's education and set him up in business.

FEATHER MITE NEW POULTRY PARASITE

By NEA Service

Lafayette, Ind.—Discovery of a new poultry parasite, called the feather mite, is announced by Prof. C. R. Cleveland, of the Department of Entomology at the Purdue experiment station here.

According to Prof. Cleveland, this mite has already been reported at farms in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana. It spreads rapidly and lives and breeds on the birds. The common roost mite remains on the fowls only at night.

Because of their continual drain on the poultry, day and night, these pests are much more dangerous than other mites, frequently killing the birds outright. They may be found on all parts of the body, but accumulate most at the base of the tail and below the vent. Their life cycle, from egg to adult is only about eight to twelve days, so infestation develops rapidly.

During warm weather a careful dipping treatment is a good cure, the dip consisting of one ounce of soap and two ounces of finely divided flowers of sulphur to a gallon of tepid water. The soap should be dissolved first and the sulphur then stirred in.

In cold weather the dip cannot be used effectively. Instead, liberal dusting with finely powdered sulphur is recommended.

IMPROVING CLOVER
For an improved clover crop next year, the field should be clipped or lightly pastured. This keeps down the weeds and prevents the young clover plants from blossoming later in the season. But first year clover should not be clipped too late in the fall or grazed too closely.

In the last two years, Congress faced about 1000 farm bills, of which 18 were passed.

GIVES HOME FOR NEWSPAPERMEN IN SUNNY SOUTH

Former N.Y. Congressman Gives Fortune Aged Scribes.

Orlando, Florida—Gratifying a life long yearning to be "associated with the men of the fourth estate," and an attachment since boyhood days for the newspaper profession, Chas D. Haines, former New York State Congressman, distinguished himself Monday when he donated to the Florida newspapermen's association a beautiful lakeside estate of rolling woodland, orange groves and shaded lawns at Altamonte Springs as a home for weary journalists.

This is to be a home, not a poor house, where all the atmosphere of life and it shall ever flourish and where the underpaid scribes can find an abode to their liking after giving so much for so little, compared with the effort expended.

In his short talk before the seventy-five newspaper men of the state, Mr. Haines explained his motive.

"From the time I was just a boy," the Congressman explained, "I have had a great longing to be associated with men of the fourth estate, but long ago I realized that I could not write in the manner that newspapermen do write, and yet my attachment for the profession continued.

Newspaper men have been the ones who have given much to the world and have received but small recompense. They have given the best that was in them and then settled in some charitable institution. I do not want to give a poor house or charitable institution but I have wanted them to have a home when they were tired where they might come and be happy. It is my desire that they might have golf links and tennis courts and plenty of land in which to enjoy themselves.

"For that reason I am giving the Florida Newspaper Men's Association twenty acres of young groves extending off to the east from this house and twenty more acres off in the valley. And for Mrs. Haines, I give you this club house with the theater which has been erected with twenty-five acres of land around it. With this and the check for $10,000 which I am giving your chairman today I hope that the project can be started.

Rest Retained Only For Lifetime.
"Although there has been some advice to the contrary I am giving you this land, the home and land without any strings attached. I want you to take it and make of it what you can. It has been said that the project should be national undertaking. I believe it should be, although I feel that Altamonte Springs and Florida is the most ideal spot for the home to be established.

"The rest of the Haines estate and the buildings which are now on it I ask you to let Mrs. Haines and me retain until the end of our lives, which I hope you will then take over and make a real home for the retired and working newspaper men of the country.

FEAR GIPSY MOTH
The federal government has placed a quarantine against importation of Christmas trees and greens from certain parts of Quebec, due to the presence of the gipsy moth, a destructive insect pest, in northern Vermont near the Canadian border. It is expected shortly to invade Canada and then spread to other parts of the United States.

Dawes Celebrates His Birthday By Working on Speech

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 27—Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice president, spent today—his 59th birthday—at his home here at work in the address he will make Friday night at Lincoln, Nebraska.

No special observance of the day was planned except a birthday dinner tonight at which members of his campaign travelling party including newspaper correspondents will be guests.

The vice presidential candidate will speak extemporaneously at Lincoln, but he had before him today for study considerable statistical information on the agricultural problem, which will be the principal subject of his address.

Mr. Dawes probably will return to Evanston after his Lincoln address and probably will not start on another trip until after Labor Day.

At the beginning of this year there were 474,000,000 chickens on American farms.

TILDEN TO QUIT TENNIS?

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 27.—William T. Tilden, national tennis champion who is defending his title here this week declared today he was seriously considering retiring from the game in 1925 to accept a motion picture contract.

The titleholder, whose status as a player-writer after next January has been the cause of a storm within tennis ranks, refused to discuss details of his plans, but emphasized that if he accepted the movie offer it undoubtedly would mean the end of his competitive career, regardless of whether he is still champion or not.

Calais, France, Aug. 27.—The attempt by Lillian Harrison, Argentine swimmer, to negotiate the Channel has been postponed from tomorrow until Sept. 3 or 4 as her trainer thinks it better for her to continue her present strenuous work so as to be in the best possible condition.

Meanwhile an Egyptian swimmer, Elia, plans to start across Friday.

Egg production has increased one third in the three years from 1920 to 1923.

YANKS SPRINT FOR SIX POINTS WHEN WASHINGTON LOSES

Opportunities Knock Was Unheeded By Senators Yesterday.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

With opportunity knocking loudly yesterday Washington failed to respond to the call and today the Senators are six points behind the Yanks who split a double header with the Indians, losing the first game 1-0, and taking the second 5-4. The Capitol city crew lost to the Browns in an eleven inning contest 8-6 after counting 4 runs in the 8th to tie.

Had Washington won it would be safely entrenched in first place today.

Coveleskie is the second pitcher to shut out the Yanks this year.

Cobb's Detroit club in third place, three and one-half games back of New York, could do no better than split even with the Red Sox in Boston, getting the verdict in the opener 5-4, Quinn stopped them short in the second game 3-6.

The White Sox and the Athletics divided two games in Philadelphia. Harry Hooper of the Sox hit a homer with the bases full in the 4th inning of the first game which went to the Chicago club 12-9 breaking the White Sox losing streak on the 14th game.

Connie Mack pitched Baumgartner in the second game, stopping the White Sox 9-1.

In the National League with only two games scheduled, no material change occurred in the league standing.

The defeat of Pittsburgh by the Phillies 7-6, caused the Pirates to lose a half game as the league leading Giants remained idle. Pittsburgh now trails the McGraw crew four and one-half games.

Brooklyn in third place was not scheduled, thereby gaining a half game on the Pirates, in 2nd place, two and one-half games in front of the Dodgers.

Allison Schorron of the Cardinals held the Cubs to six well scattered hits in the windy city and took the first game of the series 3-0.

Babe Ruth had an off day. In the first game with Cleveland he went hitless in three trips to the plate and in the second he hoisted two singles in four chances.

Rogers Hornsby, Cardinal slugging ace, slackened up a bit, but delivered a single and a double in four attempts in the game with the Chicago Cubs. Adams' grab of a hard liner robbed him of a third hit.

British Golfers Arrive Here for Walker Cup Match

By Associated Press Leased Wire

New York, Aug. 28.—Ten golfers, who arrived yesterday from Southampton on the Homeric to represent Great Britain in the matches for the Walker cup next month on September 12 and 13 today went to the Garden City to practice on the course where the matches will be played.

They will play in an invitation tournament on the National Links of America at Southampton, Long Island, starting September 4. On September 7 they will engage in 18 hole matches at the National Links, in which the balls will be lighter and larger variety, such as the U. S. Golf association is expected to adopt as standard.

After the Walker cup matches the visitors will play in the National Amateur Championship.

Speaker Sizes Up Recruits with Eye of Next Year Play

Speaker will hold his veteran pitchers in reserve to relieve and to work against New York, Detroit and Washington.

SEED CORN MAY BE SCARCE IN SPRING FARMERS WARNED

University Expert Advises Gathering of Surplus of Seed.

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 26.—Possibilities of the worst seed corn shortage next spring since 1918 is one of the most serious aspects of the present alarm over corn crop conditions in Illinois and throughout the corn belt, according to J. C. Hackleman, crop extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. Unless freezing weather holds off until about the first of November, there undoubtedly will be heavier demand for good seed corn next spring than has been the case for six years, he said.

He has warned farmers not to take any chance but to gather a considerable surplus of seed in order to be prepared for the threatened shortage. From present indications, the biggest part of Illinois corn will not be past glazed dent, or silage stage by the date of average killing frosts in Illinois, but even at this stage seed ears can be selected with a fair degree of safety, provided they are given the proper care, he pointed out. When picked about the time the crop is ready for silage, the seed ears should not be piled up but should be put on racks where there will be a free circulation of air around them and where they will be protected from freezes before completely dried out, he recommended.

Would Bring Good Price.

"It looks now as if farmers who pick a surplus of seed corn and take care of it will have a readily salable product," he said.

"Several conditions have contributed toward what threatens to be one of the most serious seed corn situations in years. In the first place Illinois farmers started out with poor seed corn this spring, because of the early frost and severe winters of the 1923-1924 season. Poor as the seed was, it could not be planted on time because of the late spring and in most parts of the state farmers were an average of 15 to 20 days late in getting their corn in. Then after the seed was planted there were several weeks of cool, wet weather, all of which gave the crop a serious setback."

To matters worse the average temperatures in Illinois this summer have been cooler than is best for corn and hence the crop has been not able to regain any of the time lost earlier in the spring. To be relatively safe for seed this year corn must have favorable growing weather until about the middle of October.

"Some idea of how much chance there is for corn to mature before killing frosts catch it this year can be gained from the fact that in the last five years there have been only two seasons in which corn was not killed by frost until after the first of November. In two other seasons it was killed during the latter half of October and one year, 1923, killing frosts came Sept. 13 and 14.

Questionnaires to Estimate Crops

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 27—Questionnaires insuring accuracy in crop estimating and reporting, by means of a check and counter check on Illinois crops, have been mailed to farmers throughout the state by A. J. Surratt, agricultural statistician at the agricultural economics bureau here.

By means of the questionnaires individual reports on all farm activity is received at the statistician's office, direct from the farmers of the state. These reports are filled and compared to the reports issued from the county bureaus, in order to insure accuracy.

Ten thousand copies of schedule

Questions which are to be answered include the summing up of crop acreage for the farm, the acreage of corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, grown for all purposes except soil improvement; the hay acreage, the cotton, sorghum, tobacco, potatoes, soy beans and peanuts grown, the new land under cultivation, the plow land lying idle in summer, the pasture land and the wild grasses which are cut from hay from uncultivated lands.

Through the questionnaires, Mr. Surratt hopes to secure a high degree of accuracy, and also hopes to better show the shifting of acreage from one crop to another, a part of the annual report not determined absolutely in the past.

A GOOD REPORT

"Do you mean to say like this stupid play?"

"Good heavens, no."

"Why are you clapping so loud, then?"

"To keep awake. —Sans Gene-

With Marzak following at her heels, she swept like a fury into the darkened room where Asad took his ease.

"What is this I hear, O my lord?" she cried, in tone and manner more the European shrew than the submissive Eastern slave. "Is Sakr-el-Bahr to go upon this expedition against the treasure-galley of Spain?"

Reclining on the divan he looked her up and down with a languid eye.

"Dost know of any better fitted to succeed?" quoth he.

"I know of one whom it is my lord's duty to prefer to that foreign adventurer. One who is entirely faithful and entirely to be trusted. One who does not attempt to retain for himself a portion of the wealth garnered in the name of Islam."

"Bah!" said Asad. "Will thou talk forever of those two slaves? And who may be this paragon of thine?"

"Marzak," she answered fiercely, flinging out an arm to drag forward her son. "Is he to waste his youth here in softness and idleness? But yesternight that ribald mocked him with his lack of scars. Shall he take scars in the orchard of the Kasbah here? Is he to be content with those that come from the scratch of a bramble, or is he to learn to be a fighter and leader of the Children of the Faith that himself he may follow in the path his father trod?"

"Whether he so follows," said Asad, "is as the Sultan of Istanbul, the Sublime Portal, shall decree. We are but his viceregents here."

"But shall the Grand Sultan appoint him to succeed thee if thou hast not equipped him so to do? I cry shame on thee, O father of Marzak, for that thou art lacking in due pride in thine own son."

"May Allah give me patience with thee! Have I not said that he is still over young."

"At his age thyself thou wert upon the seas, serving with the great Ochiali."

"At his age I was, by the favor of Allah, taller and stronger than he is. I cherish him too dearly to let him go forth and perchance be lost to me before his strength is full grown."

"Look at him," she commanded. "He is a man, Asad, and such a son as another might take pride in. Is it not time we girt a scimitar

"As the pupil," Asad amended. "What else?"

"Were I a man, O fountain of my soul," said she, "and had I a son, none but myself should be his preceptor. I should so mould and fashion him that he should be another me. That, O my dear lord, is thy duty to Marzak. Entrust not his training to another, and to one whom despite thy love for him I can not trust. Go forth thyself upon this expedition with Marzak here for thy kaya."

Asad frowned.

"I grow too old," he said. "I have not been upon the seas these two years past. Who can say that I may not have lost the art of victory. No, no."

He shook his head, and his face grew overcast and softened by wistfulness.

"Sakr-el-Bahr commands this time, and if Marzak goes, he goes with him."

"My lord—" she began, then checked.

A Nubian had entered to announce that Sakr-el-Bahr was come and was awaiting the orders of his lord in the courtyard. Asad rose instantly and for all that Fenzileh, greatly daring as ever, would still have detained him, he shook her off impatiently, and went out.

She watched his departure with anger in those dark, lovely eyes of hers, and anger that went near to flinging them in tears, and after he had passed out into the glaring sunshine beyond the door, a silence dwelt in the cool, darkened chamber—silence disturbed only by distant trills of silvery laughter from the lesser women of the Bashah's house. The sound jarred her taut nerves. She moved with an oath and beat her hands together. To answer her came a negro, lithe and muscular as a wrestler and naked to the waist; the slavering in her ear was a massive gold.

"Bid them make an end of that screaming," she snapped to vent some of her fierce petulance. "Tell them I will have the rods to them if they again disturb me."

The negress went out, and silence followed; for those other lesser ladies of the Bashah's harem were more obedient to the commands of Fenzileh than to those of the Bashah himself.

Then she drew her son to the fretted lattice commanding the courtyard, a screen from behind which they could see and hear all that passed out yonder. Asad was speaking, informing Sakr-el-Bahr of what he had learned and what there was to do.

"How soon canst thou put to sea again?" he ended.

"As soon as the service of Allah and thyself require," was the prompt answer.

"It is well, my son."

Asad laid a hand affectionately upon the corsair's shoulder, entirely conquered by this readiness. "Best set out at sunrise tomorrow. Thou'll need so long to make thee ready for the sea."

"Then by thy leave I go forth with to give orders to prepare," replied Sakr-el-Bahr, for all that he was a little troubled in his mind by this need to depart again so soon.

"What galley shall thou take?" "To capture one galley of Spain! My own galleass, no more; she will be full equal to such an enterprise, and I shall be the better able, then, to lurk and take cover—a thing which might well prove impossible with a fleet."

"Aye—thou art wise in thy darning," Asad approved him. "May Allah prosper thee upon the voyage."

"Have I thy leave to go?"

"A moment yet. There is my son Marzak. He is approaching manhood, and it is time he entered the service of Allah and the State. It is my desire that he sail as thy lieutenant on this voyage, and that thou be his preceptor even as I was thine of old."

Now here was something that pleased Sakr-el-Bahr as little as it pleased Marzak. Knowing the bitter enmity borne him by the son of Fenzileh he had every cause to fear trouble if this project of Asad's were realized.

"As I was thine of old!" he answered with crafty wistfulness. "Wilt thou not put to sea with us tomorrow, O Asad? There is none like thee in all Islam, and what a joy were it not to stand beside thee on the prow as of old when we grapple with the Spaniard." Asad considered him.

"Straightly I answer thee that he is not. And, as straightly, I tell thee that it is full time he were. Thy duty is to let him go upon this expedition that he may learn the trade that lies before him."

Asad considered a moment.

"Shalt set forth, then, with Sakr-el-Bahr, my son."

"With Sakr-el-Bahr?" cried Fenzileh aghast.

"I could find him no better preceptor."

"Shall thy son go forth as the servant of another?"

about his waist and trod the poop of one of the galleys?"

"Indeed, indeed, O my father!" begged Marzak himself.

"What?" barked the old Moor. "And is it so? And wouldst thou go forth then against the Spaniard? What knowledge hast thou that shall equip thee for such a task?"

"What can his knowledge be since his father has never been concerned to school him?" returned Fenzileh. "Dost thou sneer at shortcomings that are the natural fruits of thine own omissions?"

"I will be patient with thee," said Asad, showing every sign of losing patience. "I will ask thee only if in thy judgment he is in case to win victory for Islam?"

"Answer me straightly now."

"Dost thou, too, urge this?" quoth he.

"Have others urged it?"

The man's sharp wits, rendered still sharper by his sufferings, were cutting deeply and swiftly into this matter.

"They did well, but none could have urged it more fervently than I for none knows so well as I the joy of battle against the infidel under thy command and the glory of prevailing in thy sight. Come then, my lord, upon this enterprise, and be thyself thine own son's preceptor, since 'tis the highest honor thou canst bestow upon him."

COUNTY OFFICIALS HEAR EXPLANATION OF SPECIAL LAWS

Chief Clerk Vogel Tells of Laws to Be Voted On in November.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 27—County supervisors, commissioners, county and probate clerks, and auditors were today given specific information upon Illinois legislature propositions, which came up for vote in the November election. Lewis Vogel, clerk of the index department of the Sec. of State's office discussed the five major propositions before county officials on orders of the state legislature.

The five propositions, Senate Bill 509, providing for the lease of the Illinois and Michigan canal; House bill 616 and Senate Bill 549, amending the banking law; Senate bill 316, providing for a $100,000,000 bond issue road, and Senate joint resolution 1, amending Section two, article 14, of the Constitution of Illinois, were commented upon.

Waterway Proposition.

Vogel said: "The General Assembly of 1907 adopted a joint resolution providing what is commonly known as the Lake to Gulf waterway, which carried with it the proposition of submitting to the voters of the state the issuance of $20,000,000 in bonds. This proposition was ratified in 1908. Nothing was done regarding this project until 1919 when the legislature passed an act providing for the reconstruction of the Illinois Deep Waterway, which was, and is now connected with the Chicago River by the Illinois and Michigan canal.

In the meantime, however, it is contended the channel of the Chicago Sanitary District has been so developed and constructed as to provide a much better connection between the Chicago river and the Illinois Deep Waterway, and it is claimed the old Illinois and Michigan canal is no longer required for the purpose of navigation and water transportation between Chicago and Joliet. Thus we have Senate bill 509 under the provision of which the department of public works and buildings of this state is authorized to lease any part or all of the Illinois and Michigan canals and its right of way to produce revenue for the State of Illinois. This proposition to become a law must receive a majority of all votes cast at the election at which it is submitted.

Amends Banking Law.

"House bill 616 merely amends section 9 of the Banking Law by providing that no bank may establish or maintain more than one banking house or receive deposits or pay checks at any other place than such banking house. In other words, under the provision of this amendatory act, no bank may establish or maintain a branch office or bank.

"Senate bill 549, is the other act amending the Banking Law and amends several sections of the statute under which we are now operating. The new act requires from five to twenty-five persons to make application to organize a bank. The exact number depends on the size of the city or village in which the bank proposes to operate. The old act requires but three persons. Another section of the new act adds the words 'in the penitentiary'. This refers to the penalty for making false statements with the intent to defraud. The old act did not specifically state in the penitentiary.

"Senate bill no. 376, the act providing for the issuance and sale of bonds of the State of Illinois to the amount of $100,000,000 for hard roads. The act provides for the retirement of the bonds and the payment of the interest thereon out of the automobile fees paid into the office of the secretary of state.

"Senate joint resolution no. 1, provides for what is generally known as the Gateway amendment which allows the General Assembly to submit two amendments to the constitution of this state at any general election. Heretofore only one amendment could be proposed and submitted at an election."
